Why Retired Hero Dogs (Like Me) Need Your Help Today

I'm Bob, a retired Homeland Security bomb dog. Sadly, when my loyal service to our great country ended, I was tossed aside – all my benefits stopped. That's right, our government turned their back on me. No more food. No more veterinary care.

And that's when my partner Rick adopted me – but he couldn't afford the pain-relieving surgery I desperately needed.

Thankfully, the folks at Paws of Honor were there to help me.

You see, they pay for lifesaving medical care for America's retired hero dogs. And they do it at no cost to our families. All thanks to donations from kindhearted patriots like you!

But listen, with the cost of gas, food, and everyday essentials soaring, donations have plunged. Lots of our dog-loving supporters just can't contribute as much anymore.

And too many of my four-legged friends are suffering from cancer, arthritis, burns, and other painful ailments due to their service. They're in urgent need of expensive medical care.

Worse yet, our families are also feeling the sting and simply can't afford the sky-high medical bills us older retired veteran dogs often have.

How You Can Help Right Now

Extra donations are needed now. Will you please be a hero and lifeline to my suffering doggy-hero friends and rush a special tax-deductible "stretch gift" today – right now? Because whatever you can send now is urgently needed. And thank you in advance for your continued support!

With a tail-wagging thanks,

P.S. You know the vital work of your Paws of Honor doesn't slow down in times of economic crisis. In fact, they're taking in more of my four-legged friends than their budget can afford to treat. Remember, if you can't give today, you can still be a hero and share my letter with a friend or family member who can donate now.
